Todd advises businesses on a broad range of legal issues including labor and employment matters, operational issues, and transactions. He litigates matters for business clients in state and federal court, including cases involving wrongful termination, employment discrimination, misappropriation of trade secrets, violations of non-compete agreements, shareholder disputes and other business issues.

He represents businesses in wage and hour investigations as well as health and safety investigations. Todd also defends charges of discrimination filed with the EEOC and state agencies.

Todd joined Thrasher Dinsmore & Dolan in 1994 and became a partner in the firm in 2001.
